HSA Bank's SVP Romanini Receives Industry Honor

WATERBURY, Conn., September 30, 2010 – HSA Bank announced today that Itamar Romanini was recognized with a 2010 Innovator Award from CDHC Solutions and EmployersWeb.com. Romanini received the award for his contributions to HSA Bank's growth since joining the organization in 2000. Particularly, it was his involvement in "the development and implementation of new technology that [helps] HSA Bank more effectively foster its relationships with its customers."

"When I heard that I would be recognized with an Innovator Award, I was truly honored," said Romanini, senior vice president of Business Development. "I believe in our bank, and will remain committed to the success of our business partners and clients because that is how we will achieve success."

Romanini was intensely involved with the development and introduction of HSA Bank's automated enrollment process, automated payment process, real time Web services and Internet Banking. The addition of these technologies makes HSA Bank's Health Savings Account (HSA) product more convenient for individuals to obtain, use and manage.

"Itamar has played such an important role in getting HSA Bank to where we are today," said Kirk Hoewisch, president of HSA Bank. "He has done so much for the bank, our business partners and our customers; he is very deserving of this award."
